Endorsements for YOUNG CUBA

Jonathan Moller is an exceptional photographer, and the images in this book tell a magnificent story that is rich with humanity and youthful vitality.

Anne E. Havinga, Senior Curator of Photographs at the Museum of Fine Arts, Boston

Jonathan “Jonás” Moller’s photos are professional in all respects. But what makes them extraordinary is the sum of moments, the journey through places of authentic everyday Cuba. That’s why when you put this book down it feels like you have been on a voyage through a country, a people, and none of it has been retouched.

Silvio Rodríguez Domínguez, Singer/Songwriter, Havana

Jonathan Moller’s new book illuminates an aspect of Cuban society that we rarely see: the vibrance, intelligence and creativity of its younger generation, along with its mighty aspirations and complex challenges. Moller’s thoughtful images and text present an opportunity to leave political rhetoric behind and more fully experience the humanity we share with the people of this beautiful island.

Virginia Beahan, Photographer and Senior Lecturer at Dartmouth College, and author of CUBA: singing with bright tears

As the world’s nations lurch toward isolation and a rejection of that which is foreign, I am grateful for the gesture of Jonathan Moller’s images, which insist in the most generous way, upon a future of empathy and solidarity.
